Hoo-Ray! We CAN trap a mouse

Remember last week we were annoying Paul McKinstry because he admitted that he owns a mouse trap, and we accused him of being a law breaker because it is against the law to trap mammals or to own a trap capable of taking mamals in a game refuge, and Carmel is a game refuge (Sec. 250 of the Fish and Game Code)?

Now Laidlaw Williams comes forward with Sec. 282 of the same Code which provides that in the Monterey Game Refuge a lawful occupant of privately owned land or an employee of a lawful occupant of privately owned land may hunt or take predatory or destructive birds or mammals provided that in so doing he doesn't violate the State Law. We dare say a mouse would be considered a distructive mammal, so if you threw your mouse trap in the garbage can last week on our say-so, dig it out and go to work. But don't go shooting hawks and owls indiscriminately on the grounds that they are predatory birds and Sec. 282 permits it, because you will be in conflict with a State law that protects all hawks and owls because of their rodent catching proclivities (that mouse again!) except the Cooper and sharp- shinned hawk, and the long eared owl. There are some other exceptions but you are not likely to encounter them in this area, says Mr. Williams, who is technical advisor to the Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society. If you are like most people, you can't tell one hawk or owl from another, anyway, so the best thing you can do is to leave them all alone.

Also, according to this same section 282, in the Monterey Peninsula Game Refuge you may possess or transport fire arms, so you don't have to check your gun in Watsonville before returning to your home in the refuge. Now I fully expect somebody to catch me Friday morning and say—"But Wilma, Watsonville is IN the Refuge!"

Feathers in the Fire

It may seem a lesser tragedy in the face of $150,000 loss in buildings and equipment of the Pacific Grove High School fire, but Ferdinand Ruth's friends and science students feel that a very serious loss was sustained when the fire invaded the high school laboratory, and the popular science teacher lost his collection of bird skins and four months' notes of his work toward his doctorate.

Ruth has been building up the collection of bird skins for several years. Some of the specimens were from the Silliman collection (Pine Cone told you about the Silliman Library being given to the Salinas Junior college last week). The Silliman collection of bird skins and birds' eggs was donated to the University of California Museum of Vertibrate Zoology. Ruth persuaded the C. M. V. Z. to give him the unlabeled and duplicate specimens. His primary purpose in assembling the collection was to assist his science students and the members of

The Frederick Searchs Return To Live In Valley House Haunted By Ghost Of Murdered Indian Girl

BY ROSALIND SHARPE

The question is, can a ghost who has always been seen walking down a stairway appear when the stairway no longer exists?

Twenty-five years ago Frederick and Opal Search, old time Carmelites who were active in the musical world, bought a ranch up the Carmel Valley in the hope that some day they would be able to quit civilization and farm. Last month they moved down from Orinda with truck load after truck load of belongings, seven cats, numerous ducks, chickens, a turkey, a couple of cocks, an Irish setter and various heifers and steers into the dilapidated old ranch house which has stood there for at least 110 years. Busily involved in the job of ripping out layers of ancient, varicolored wallpaper, painting, repapering and extensively remodelling, they haven't had time to worry about the ghost yet and so far it hasn't appeared.

Nobody knows the exact history of the Search ranch, except that it was once part of the old Tularcitos grant from the King of Spain. The old adobe section of the house, which was the original grant house, has stood there for about 110 years. The wooden part was added later by American owners about 80 years ago who came into possession of it when the U. S. surveyors discovered that 320 acres of the Spanish grant, including the house itself, stood outside the boundary lines. The place passed through a number of hands before the Searchs bought it, and many of the occupants, as well as valley old-timers, saw the ghost descending the staircase. Perhaps this was why so many of them moved away.

According to Ben Blomquist, a valley oldtimer who owns a lot of property up there but lives at the Search ranch, the ghost has been seen by many reliable people and dates back to Spanish days when a young Indian girl lived in one of the upstairs rooms of the adobe part of the house.

Beloved of two men, one of whom she loved and the other she presumably did not, she was murdered one night at the head of the staircase when she was dressed in her chemise. (The Indians frequently wore chemises as their only garment in the summer when the weather was warm.)

As to who murdered her, why or exactly what happened, none of the oldtimers are old enough to remember.

But ever since that night, the Indian girl who is reported as being very beautiful, about 16 or 17 years old, has appeared from time to time at the head of the staircase

GETTING AROUND THE PENINSULA

With ROZ

C. M. Goldsworthy, president of the California Water and Telephone Company, was up in the Cachagua last week to look over the Martin Flavin ranch and figure out how much of the area would be flooded when they build the second storage dam.

Although the water company is definitely proceeding with the idea of building the dam, discussing land purchase questions with attorneys, and having plans drawn up for the dam itself, it will still be a long time before the actual construction of the dam comes to pass, Goldsworthy stressed. After everything else has been done, plans will have to be okayed by the Fish and Game Commission and the State Division of Water Resources before the local company can go to work on it.

One of their first projects will be to take out all the brush and trees in the area. There are hundreds of oaks—some very old, gnarled and tough ones — which will have to be cut down, but they are hoping to be able to use a bulldozer on the brush.

Other water company news: The filter plant up the Carmel Valley inside the San Clemente gate is almost completed, which ought to be good news to people all over the peninsula. The filter will take out most of the suspended matter, discoloration and other foreign substances. And over at Seaside the California Water and Telephone Company has purchased some lots for a tank-site. "The territory is growing pretty fast," Goldsworthy said. "There will be a lot more people there. So we're getting ready for it with extra storage space."

The water color show, which was at the Carmel Art Association Galleries before the holidays, has been re-hung with the addition of several new paintings and members.

Hoyland Bettinger, now living at Big Sur, who came here because he's an old friend of Howard Smith, has several water colors in the show, and Mrs. Marion Monks Chase, mother of Mrs. L. P. Sanford of Carmel Highlands, has paintings in the oil room. Mrs. Chase was one of the original members of the Boston Guild of Water Colorists, and a member of the National Women Painters. She is now living with her daughter and son-in-law at Yankee Point in the Highlands.

Eight pre-fabricated buildings were located at the Lathrop Engineering Depot at Stockton, California, and with the co-operation of War Assets Administration officials and U. S. Army personnel at Stockton their procurement as emergency housing for the Pacific Grove High School was effected with unprecedented speed. The buildings, weighing ten tons each, were transported from Stockton to Pacific Grove immediately, and construction, under the charge of architect Robert Stanton, commenced Monday, January 6, when classes started. The buildings are being set up in the tennis courts, and the job should be completed in two or three weeks.

Cause of the fire which demolished the 1911 structure of the Pacific Grove High School Saturday night, December 28, is as yet undetermined. Damage has not been set, but people have guessed it to be about $150,000.

ALL MALE CHORUS IS REORGANIZING

The All Male Chorus, which disbanded in 1942 shortly after the war started, is being reorganized again and will hold its first regular meeting at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday, January 15, in the library at Sunset School. All those interested in participating are urged to attend.

Jimmy Griffin will direct the singing, and one of the objects of the chorus will be to put on a concert sometime in the not-too-distant future.

An organization meeting was held last Wednesday night, with fifteen former members present, including Frank Benny of Monterey, president, and Dr. Howard Clarke, Harold Nielsen and Wallace Doolittle, who are on the board of directors.

Dick Lofton's Show Opens At Gallery Jan. 15

Richard Lofton, the South Carolina artist who's been living in Carmel and painting Point Lobos, is going to have a one-man show at the Carmel Art Association Galleries commencing January 15. It will be his second show in the west. The first was at the Lucien Laboudt Gallery in San Francisco last November, where it won considerable attention from critics.

Alexander Fried of the Examiner described Lofton's work as "dense, heavy and rigid, but of unquestioned integrity," but Alfred Frankenstein of the Chronicle held a startlingly different opinion.

"His oils," Frankenstein said, "are mostly large, opulently drawn, richly painted studies of the Gullah Negroes of the Carolinian sea islands. They are monumental pieces but their monumentality does not preclude their possessing a strong human appeal. Lofton's oils move in tempo maestoso and are scored for cellos and horns. His water colors on the other hand are quick, shattery, fugitive notations for piccolo and triangle. They may be the scherzo in the Loftonian

New Ordinance Well Equipped With Safeguards

Before first reading of the empowering ordinance for the Planning Commission at the City Council meeting Wednesday night City Attorney William Hudson explained that though it sets up machinery for granting exceptions to building code regulations and handling requests for re-zoning of property, it does not create new powers, merely transfers from the city council to the planning commission powers that already exist.

Moreover, in the matter of exceptions to the building code, the right of appeal to the city council is provided, by the petitioner, if the request is denied, and by the citizens at large on the presentation of a petition signed by 20 voters if the request is granted and the citizens feel that it is detrimental to the general good.

In the matter of re-zoning applications, though the commission holds public hearings and makes

65 In Symphony, Ferrante Named Chairman Protem

Peter Ferrante has been asked to serve as chairman protem for the first business meeting of the Regional Symphony Association to be held Sunday afternoon, January 19, at the high school music room, from 3 to 5, when officers will be elected and a constitution discussed.

Mrs. Howard Elton Clark will be in charge of the tea following the business meeting.

Meanwhile, at the first meeting of the Symphony Orchestra Monday night, attended by 65 musicians from all over the county, a temporary symphony control board was set up. Composed of the instrumental teachers from the various city schools, it will represent the musicians in discussions with the Association. When the members of the orchestra become better acquainted with each other, an election will be held to select members for the permanent control board. Music instructors now serving are: Lorell McCann, Salinas Junior College, who is also concert master of the new orchestra, John Farr, Carmel High School, Raymond Washburn, Pacific Grove High School, Frank Young and Clifford Anderson, Monterey High School.

Conductor Leon Minear was highly pleased with the number and quality of the musicians that

Big Three-Day Pro-Amateur Tourney Opens

Today (Friday, Jan. 10) the nation's top professional golfers, headed by Ben Hogan, last year's big money winner and winner of the Los Angeles Open which just concluded this week, as well as leading amateurs and Hollywood celebrities, tee off at Cypress Point Club in the first day of the three day $10,000 National Pro-Amateur golf championship, sponsored by Bing Crosby.

Tomorrow (Saturday) the 150 golfers play at the Monterey Peninsula Country Club and Sunday the tournament comes to a climax over Pebble Beach course.

Bing Crosby is among the Hollywood stars who will be playing the tournament. Crosby is paired with Cam Puget, pro at the Country Club.

Also playing are Johnny Weissmuller, Randolph Scott, Bob Crosby, Dick Arlen, Dennis O'Keefe and other motion picture colony golfers.

Among the professionals, in addition to Hogan, are Sam Snead, Lloyd Mangrum, Vic Ghezzi, Jimmy Demaret, Denny Shute, Lawson Little, Craig Wood and others.

The tournament is medal play, with each 18 hole score added to the day before for a total 54 hole score. No players are eliminated. The same 150 players will still be going strong Sunday.

The $10,000 prize money is divided among the pros, while the six top amateurs get Philco radios.

Bing sponsors the tournament, and all proceeds go to charity, divided equally between the Sister Kenny Foundation for Infantile Paralysis and the Monterey Peninsula Community Chest.

Tickets can be obtained at all gates to the Del Monte Forest.

Sporting NOTES

BASKETBALL ACTIVITY ON THE PENINSULA

Tonight—Gonzales at Carmel High School—Lightweights at 7 p. m., and Varsity at 8 p. m.; Watsonville at Monterey High School, 7:30 p. m.; King City at Pacific Grove High School, 7:30 p. m.

With practice games out of the way the Carmel Padres and the Gonzales Warriors will square off tonight in the opening game of the 1947 basketball race. The lightweight fracas will start at 7:00 o'clock and will be followed immediately by the Varsity encounter. No line is available on the Gonzales teams but they have veteran aggregations returning from last season which should be able to hold their own with league rivals. Carmel has played out of its class in all practice games but tonight will tell how they stack up with schools their own size. The Padres have shown considerable improvement in each game and if they can hit a fair percent of their shots will give the Warriors an interesting evening.

The lightweight squads are also unknown quantities, with the outcome of the game a toss-up. Dawson's midgets have given a good account of themselves in all practice games and have profited by much needed game experience. The Gonzales Babes are all fast boys who hold the lightweight championship in track. The Warriors are coached by Clifton King, a former professional hoop star, who should be able to show his charges the way around the court.

Art Hull and Orville Rogers' Sunset School quintets will put on an exhibition between the halves of both the lightweight and varsity games. These boys have worked hard at their basketball and exhibit some spirited competition.

The first game starts at 7:00 o'clock sharp.

Probable starting lineups:

Lightweights: Dick Garguilo, Bill Sapsis, Murrey Wight, Dick Weer, and Bob Barry.

Varsity: Lew McCreery, Bill Cross, Perry Brown, Lee Winslow, and Owen Greenan.

PINE CONE AND LEGION HAVE ROUGH GOING

Both the Carmel Legion and Pine Cone quintets ran into sterling competition in their first games in the newly formed Monterey Industrial League. The Pine Cone lost to the Presidio five by a 24 to 55 count, while the Legion dropped their to Hellams 25 to 42. Belvail and Colletto were high scorers for the Pine Cone. Belvail picked up 6 points and Colletto found the net for 11. The Presidio boys were a little too fast for the Pine Cone and their fast break left them open for many crip shots.

The Legionnaires kept well abreast of the Monterey club during the first half but in the last period the Hellam five started hitting with uncanny accuracy and pulled away for a substantial lead.

Pine Cone players and points: Belvail 6, Ricketts 2, Muscatt 2, Colletto 11, and Hendricks 3.

Carmel Legion: Weer 2, Wermuth 2, Uzzell 11, Bohlke 7, and Ashton 2.

PINE CONE FIVE WARMS UP FOR INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE

Taking on all comers in an attempt to sharpen up for league competition the Pine Cone basketball team has spent some busy evenings for the last two weeks. Teams from Salinas, Monterey and Carmel have provided the opposition for Dufur's hardwood artists. In the Industrial League the Pine Cone five will be stacked up against the Monterey Presidio Japanese, Geyer Builders, Hellams, Monterey Nisei, Doc Kelzum, and Carmel Legion.

The Carmel Legion team consists of former Padre hoopsters who have returned from the service and are active in American Legion activities. Ky Miyamoto, Carmel's favorite softball pitcher, is at the helm of the Monterey Nisei five, which is composed of American-born Japanese. The competition in the Industrial League looks to be very equal and spectators can look for some closely contested games. The games are played on Tuesday and Thursday nights with the first game starting at 7 and the second at 8:30.

CARMEL LEGION NINE V. MONTEREY SUNDAY

Next Sunday at the Monterey ball park the Carmel Legion club will try to get back in the Winter League running when they tangle with the Monterey Legion nine. At the present time Salinas Junior College and Pacific Grove are tied for the league lead with two victories and no defeats. Pacific Grove has taken the measure of Stolte Inc. and the Monterey Legion without being extended too much. The Junior College has defeated Stolte Inc. and the Carmel Legion in very close games.

The Carmel nine dropped the Salinas encounter but won from Stoltes. If the local Legionnaires can get by the Monterey Legion they will be tied for second place as Pacific Grove and Salinas also play this Sunday and one of them will have their record sullied. The caliber of play in the winter league has been surprisingly good and baseball fans have enjoyed some closely contested encounters.

G. P. Towne's House Sustains $5,000.00 Damage From Fire

G. P. Towne was uptown eating dinner last Monday night when he heard the fire alarm at 8:15, but didn't pay any attention to it. It was only when he got home an hour later that he found his newly purchased $20,000 home between Tenth and Eleventh on Camino Real the center of dramatic action, with flames and smoke pouring out of the roof and upstairs windows, fire crews crawling around with hose, the big Mack and the salvage engine parked outside, and a crowd of fascinated spectators observing the excitement with considerable enjoyment.

Small boys ran around picking up burning cigarettes thrown to the ground by adults, a man got tangled up with a fire hose and was highly indignant when a fireman bawled him out but calmed down when he learned local firemen are volunteers, and the bartender of a private wedding party going on at the La Playa turned up in white apron, but without any liquor.

The alarm was turned in by Noel van Bibber and Edward Franklin, who were driving down Camino Real, noticed the smoke, investigated and found the house ablaze. They raced across the street to Carmalita Benson's house, and called the fire department.

The fire was caused by clothes left drying in front of a heater. It started in the attic, spreading quickly to the rest of the upstairs, and had been burning for some time before the alarm was turned in.

Firemen had to chop big holes with their axes in the roof to let the smoke and flames out and get the water through and it took an hour and fifteen minutes to control the blaze. Twenty-three firemen turned out.

G. P. Towne bought the house only a few months ago, but had previously owned a place on the Carmel Point. Originally from Watsonville where he had a farm, he decided last year to settle down to a quiet life in Carmel.

Laura Gray

Word reached her many friends in Carmel this week of the sudden death of Mrs. Laura Gray in Los Gatos last Saturday, where she had gone for her health after selling her home on Monte Verde near Twelfth last summer. She had been a resident of Carmel for twenty years.

A native of Grand Rapids, Michigan, she is survived by her sister, Mrs. Arthur Perry of Grand Rapids, Michigan.

LEGION SUPPORTS BONDS

At the regular meeting of the Carmel Post of the American Legion Monday night, January 6, Ernest F. Morehouse gave a report on the value and necessity of the school bond issue, and members of the Legion voted it their unanimous support.

Bill Ellis, who is Scoutmaster of Boy Scout Troop 86 in Carmel, asked for anyone who knows anything about scouting to come to the Scout House on Wednesday evenings and help out. The Scouts are urgently in need of additional leadership.

Guests of the Legion were E. R. Sturdevant, Commander, and W. W. Dodd, Adjutant of the 13th District, both of Salinas. Sturedvant gave a short talk and invited the Carmel Legionnaires to attend the 13th District quarterly meeting at Hollister on Sunday, June 19.

New members who were initiated at Monday night's monthly meeting were William H. Ellis, S. F. Lashbrook, George B. Sava, Frank G. Plaisted, David H. Gill, and George H. Woolsey.

This is the third car which has been stolen and stripped recently.

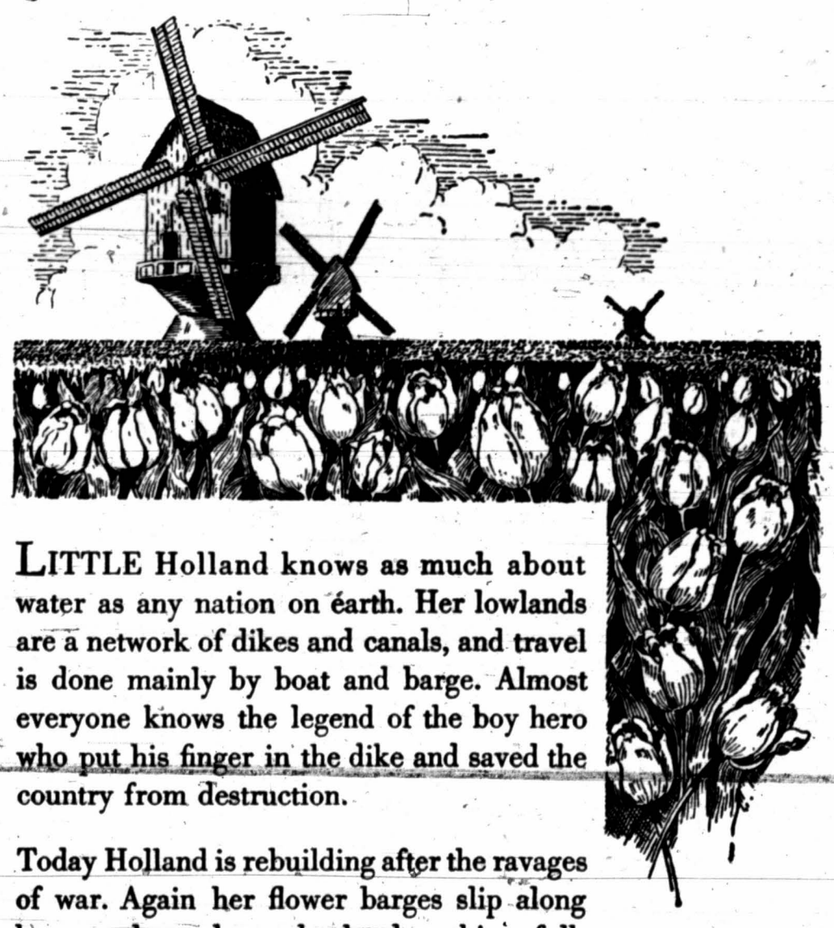
Ablaze with bloom



LITTLE Holland knows as much about water as any nation on earth. Her lowlands are a network of dikes and canals, and travel is done mainly by boat and barge. Almost everyone knows the legend of the boy hero who put his finger in the dike and saved the country from destruction.

Today Holland is rebuilding after the ravages of war. Again her flower barges slip along her canals, and sturdy, hard-working folk cultivate her fields. The lowlands, with their peculiar combination of chemicals, kissed by the salty sea air, are especially adapted to the culture of the world's finest tulips and narcissi. Little Holland is again ablaze with bloom.

Unlike California, Holland's worry is not to bring water in, but to keep it out.

Interesting Contrasts Evident In Old-New Show At Pat Wall Gallery

BY NANCY LOFTON

In its current show the Pat Wall Gallery on Olivier street in Monterey carries out several of its stated functions. The first and major function is to show the work of painters experimenting in various mediums and techniques and the second, whether implicit or explicit, is to indicate to the public that expression may take many and varied forms and to create a larger local public for abstract, non-representational painting. The gallery seems to have avoided in general, and particularly in this show, the obvious pitfall of being academic and laying down hard and fast rules about what modern painting should be. Any group or school which lays down undeviating rules becomes academic and consequently loses the spirit which informs creation and without which painting becomes merely cold reiteration of symbols and formulae.

This Old-New show at the Wall Gallery contains two canvases, one early and one recent from each of eight of the gallery's regular contributors. In some instances there is apparent a remarkable growth between the early and late canvases and in others there is a remarkable change.

Barbara Stevenson's Coast Farmer, painted in 1938, shows her interest in her materials and her warm sense of humanity. In this canvas Miss Stevenson was working out problems in light and technique. She solved her problems well but the progress she has made since then as a painter makes her later canvas, Love for Four Roses, much stronger and more mature. Through intelligent and feeling analysis and synthesis she has built up the structure of her subject to create an intense and satisfying picture.

Elwood Graham's Boatyard 1938, though definitely representational, is related to his later non-objective work. The sombreness of color of the Boatyard changes to a higher lighter tone in Nuclear Picnic, in which his color and line create a dancing, darting pattern.

Dan Harris' early water color lacks the playful, fanciful quality which he has developed since he switched to the different manner of expression he uses in Lace Tablecloth. Louisa Jenkins' two pictures show a similar switch from representation to fancy. Her early oil, Vineyard, shows sensitivity and a certain quality of imagination which becomes fantasy in her later picture of Chichicastenango, as seen through the eyes of the mind. Her use of sequins, beads, and buttons make a fascinating mosaic surface through which swirls her design.

Phil Pinner uses the angles of factory roofs and stacks to make a pattern in monochrome in his early canvas, while in his later picture, Implications, he is concerned with a completely arbitrary problem of the behavior of certain related planes and color in an antiseptic light. His work seems cool, mental, and unemotional.

There is a definite emotion expressed in Rogaway's attenuated figures. His subject matter in both his early and later canvas is the same, but the modeling in the former picture changes to high flat color in his second canvas, New Women. His gesticulating figures have a curious inward look about them, each intent on some private monologue.

The two canvases of George Harris are more closely related than any others in the show, excepting perhaps Rogaway's pair. Fanfare, dated 1946, is painted in flat brilliant color in darting planes branching out from the picture's main stem. His Growth, painted in 1939, is more subtle and thoughtful in execution, and its design is curiously related to Barbara Stevenson's Love For Four Roses. Harris' picture contains the folded budform which becomes the solid opening-out of Miss Stevenson's forms in Love For Four Roses. You can have a lot of fun playing with the related symbolism of these two pictures.

Susan Wall's two water colors make an interesting pair. Between the childlike and minutely executed idea of the Cinderella castle and the nervously quick technique of the recent portrait of Hyale there is great difference and yet a fugitive similarity.

The show is very interesting and well chosen, and gives thought for infinite speculation about the different paths of development followed by eight painters.

PHIL'S SHOP

Phil Nesbitt's shop is gradually becoming a fact. The holidays, plus the slowness of building construction has so far delayed the right moment. Now the shop space in the old Golden Bough Theater, opposite The Pine Inn, is gradually filling up with artfully decorated old chests, a hand loom, pictures, ship models, lamps, etc. An announcement will be made in The Pine Cone of the opening date when it is definitely established.

SUNSET SCHOOL NOTES

By RUTH HARRINGTON

The children of the Chinese Presbyterian Mission Home, San Francisco, were very happy with the presents sent to them by the pupils and teachers of Sunset School. Each year Lorna Logan, executive associate, sends us a list of names of the children in the orphanage. Then every room selects from one to three children to buy a present for.

Here are a few of the many thank you notes received by the Sunset School.

Dec. 25, 1946.

Dear Miss Becker,

Thank you very much for your lovely gift. I like it very much! I am six years old, going into the first grade. I will be a good boy and study hard.

Your friend, Robert Yee.

Dear Santa Claus of Sunshine School,

I hope you had a happy Christmas for I did, and I want to thank you for helping to make it so, by giving me a very pretty book. I have six brothers and sisters and my papa cannot work, for he has heart trouble. Every Saturday we all come to 144 Wetmore for club and we all have good times. Thank you. Sinclair Fong.

Dear Friend:

Thank you very much for my fluffy doggie. It is just what I like especially with his red tongue sticking out. Wilfred Fong.

We would like to express our thanks to the people of the community who contributed a mechanical toy automobile, doll furniture, and money, to help make a happier Christmas for these children. They read about our Christmas project through the weekly Sunset School news column.

The members of the Pigtail Club which is headed by Miss Pat Finley consists of five girls. We are very proud of them, for recently they received a letter from Mrs. Lorraine Luker, assistant field director, expressing her appreciation for sending eighteen Christmas boxes to the boys in the Fort Ord hospital. It reads as follows:

Fort Ord Regional Hospital
6603 A. S. U.
January 2, 1947.

Miss Pat Finley, Pigtail Club,
Box FF, Carmel, California.

Dear Miss Finley:

Will you express the appreciation of the American Red Cross at Fort Ord to your organization for the delightful gift boxes you sent for our patients' Christmas. Because of everyone's interest our patients had a wonderful Christmas.

Please accept our thanks for your part in our Xmas plans.

Very truly yours,
Lorraine Luker,
Assistant Field Director.

Mrs. Locke Collects Dolls—Old And New

There are trends among dolls too, according to Mrs. Fred Locke of Pebble Beach, whose doll collection was written up in the December issue of Hobby magazine.

"Modern dolls are changing rapidly, and they are soon taken off the market, to give place to new styles in dolls," says Mrs. Locke. "For instance I have an Elsie Borden doll which I got in Carmel during the war, and now you can't buy one anywhere. I also have a Shirley Temple doll, a Sonja Henie and a Charlie McCarthy. The Shirley Temple dolls with their big blue eyes, dimples and golden hair can't be purchased anywhere now. And now Shirley Temple is married."

Mrs. Locke started her collection with a doll which belonged to her grandmother, over a hundred years old. The very oldest dolls she has are some German dolls made of wood with arms, legs and knees that turn in their sockets, and bisque heads.

During the last Red Cross drive one of Mrs. Locke's dolls was dressed in a Gray Lady uniform, complete to the last button, and put in the Western Union window in Carmel.

Mrs. Locke was formerly reporter and interviewer on the Carmel Cymbal in Dick Masten's time.

ABSENTEE BALLOTS

Voters who wish to use absentee ballots for the school bond election may obtain them from Leo Harris, school district superintendent, by making application to him by mail at the High School any time after January 8 and before January 23.

The election will be held January 28 at Sunset School.

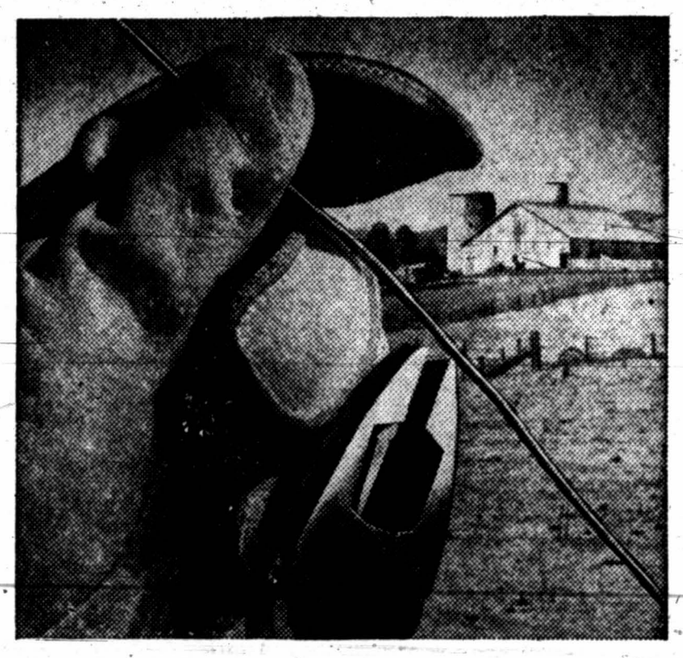
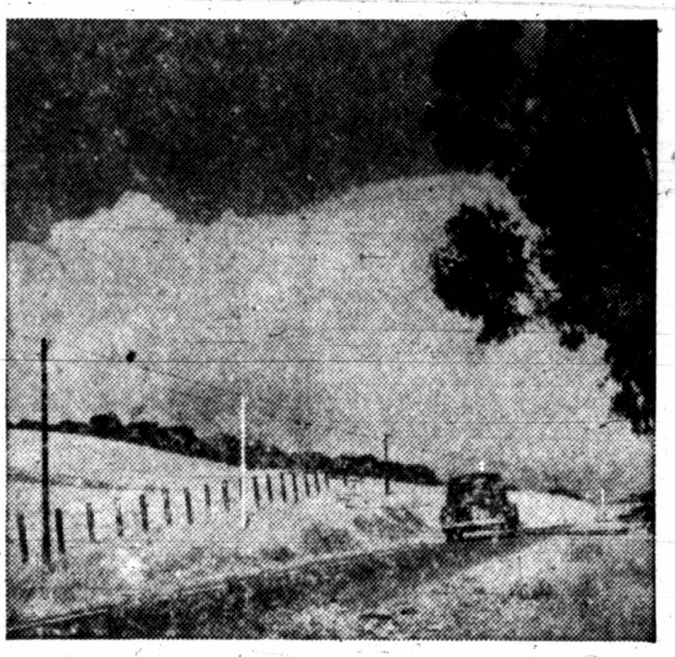
New steel telephone wires need fewer poles



Speeding telephone expansion in dozens of rural areas throughout the West, this new steel wire—developed by Bell Telephone Laboratories—is so strong the number of poles needed can be cut almost in half. This makes for far faster construction.



With other type wires, poles were generally placed less than 250 feet apart. Now, with the new steel wire, the distance can be extended to 400 feet or more. This is only one of many improvements now on the way. Rural users can expect fewer parties on their lines; fewer rings for other parties and the replacement of crank type telephones with modern instruments.

It all adds up to better service for the people who supply food for you and the world. And it's still another example of how, in our huge expansion program, we are working to provide a better, more far-reaching telephone service than ever before . . . so that the telephone steadily becomes more valuable to every user.

An ever-improving telephone service at the least cost consistent with good wages and working conditions for our employees and a reasonable return to the thousands of people who have invested in the business.

"The bread of God is he which cometh down from heaven, and giveth life unto the world" (John 6:33). This is the Golden Text for the Christian Science Lesson-Sermon for Sunday, January 12, on the subject "Sacrament."

Included in the sermon are these citations:

Mark 14:22: "And as they did eat, Jesus took bread, and blessed, and brake it, and gave to them, and said, Take eat: this is my body."

"Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "His followers, sorrowful and silent, anticipating the hour of their Master's betrayal, partook of the heavenly manna, which of old had fed in the wilderness the persecuted followers of Truth. Their bread indeed came down from heaven. It was the great truth of spiritual being, healing the sick and casting out error" (p. 33).

Hi Chatter

By MARY GREGORY

For some unexplainable reason, the general feeling at school last Monday seemed to be that "the best vacation and Christmas season yet" had come to an end. Perhaps a reason could be that vacation had started on a high note; the Christmas assembly, presented by Mr. John Farr's music department was thoroughly enjoyed by all and lent a truly festive air to school's closing.

The Winter Ball the following night was one long to be remembered by the 50 couples who attended—it was widely acclaimed the very best formal dance ever.

The Leaders Club was pleased with its Food Drive too, for a count at its end Friday, Dec. 20, disclosed that 300 items of food had been contributed for the needy.

The Christmas caroling sponsored by the Leaders' Club on Christmas Eve went on despite threatening rain, and those who participated were enthusiastic about its success. We hope our auditors were also.

No time was lost in getting school underway this last week.

Plans were made to distribute the specially printed basketball season schedules to Carmel's boxholders—a practice new this year which is hoped to raise the attendance of the townspeople at the basketball games. Commissioner of Publicity Richard Templeman is in charge of the publication.

Another activity taken on by the student council is a contest for essays and posters for the bond issue. The sum of $25 has been appropriated from student body funds to serve as prizes, the winners of which will be announced in about three weeks.

Next week is an extra special one for members of the Ski Club, for with it comes the first trip to Yosemite this year. The fortunate group will leave next Friday for a weekend of skiing at Badger Pass, and good times are expected by all. For those who will be unable to go this trip another is being planned over the weekend of February 22. These trips, combined with the excellent and very interesting ski movie shown last month, make the Ski Club, sponsored by Mr. Leo Harris, one of the best on the campus.

Betty Plaxton is the newly appointed speedball manager for the girls' intramural sports. Practice games have been held this week in order to get the teams organized and captains elected.

The Red Cross is sponsoring an after-the-game dance tonight in the cafeteria for eighth grade and high school students. Laurel Hildebrand is the general chairman; Carol Hildebrand, Roberta Roberts, Shirley Elliot, Benita Updike, and June Updike are the committee heads. Proceeds of the dance go to the National Children's Fund, so it is hoped that everyone will attend.

Lt. Col. Kidwell To Talk On Mental Hygiene For LWV

William Kidwell, lieutenant colonel, AGD, Res., during the war a military psychologist, personnel consultant and classification assignment officer, will speak at an open meeting of the Monterey Peninsula League of Women Voters on Mental Hygiene, its meaning, scope, importance and what it means to you, on Friday evening, January 17, at 8:00, at All Saints' parish house. The time is changed from the date originally set in order to get the speaker desired and in order to permit the public to hear this important discussion. Non-members as well as members are cordially invited to attend.

The program was arranged by Mrs. Wilbur Wilkinson, health chairman. Mrs. Thor Hellum is president of the League. The section studying the Central Valley Project under the leadership of Mrs. Perry Newberry is meeting this afternoon at 2:30 in the lobby of La Ribera hotel. Members interested are invited to join the group.

Have You Read . . . ?

BY MAURICE KORSHET, M. D.

J. P. Morgan's immortal maxim: "The vision to see, the courage to buy, and the patience to hold" is the keynote of Common Stocks Preferred by Willard W. Wheeler of Pebble Beach. The book appeals to the careful, cautious investor rather than the speculator or gambler.

Like horse racing or poker, Wall Street has held a great fascination for most Americans. Like any form of gambling, it has been chickens one day and feathers the next. The old adage: "You can beat a race but not the races may be transposed into you can beat a stock but not the stock market." In short, if you have the gambling urge, stay out of the market—it is no place for the get-rich-quick boys.

Curiously enough, few people know (least of all stock brokers) that Wall Street started as an actual market place. When the hard-headed Dutch bought Manhattan Island from the benighted Indians for twenty-four dollars and a few trinkets, they developed Wall Street into a market to buy and sell slaves. It's a long way from slaves to stocks. But such is progress. Or is it?

Anyway, since then millions have been made and lost in Wall Street. Made by the investor, that is, and lost by the speculator. Mr. Wheeler stresses this point strongly. He warns against greed, fear, impatience and overoptimism. If we are temperamentally or emotionally unfit to curb these impulses, he regards us unfit to trade in the market.

Ah! There's the rub! How many of us are able to curb these impulses? We know only too well that we should buy stocks when they are low and sell them when they are high. But when things boom and the financial wise-men beat the gilded tom-toms we rush to buy them high. Then when a depression (politely called recession) comes, we turn panicky and sell low. This is exactly what Wall Street banks on—the crackpots playing for the jackpots.

The author enlivens the book with narratives of his own mistakes and thumb-nail sketches of wizards like Rockefeller, Carnegie, Astor and Morgan; financial pirates like Vanderbilt, Gould and Russell Sage; gamblers like Bet-A-Million Gates to skinflint Hetty Green; and how Lamar, the Wolf of Wall Street, outfoxed Keene, the Fox of Wall Street, to the tune of five million dollars.

But this was in the days when America was comparatively young and reckless. Real estate, banks, insurance companies, railroads and industries provided a fat feast for the financial gluttons while the starved stockholders were graciously permitted to crunch a few crumbs. Now we are grown up. The blue-sky laws, the SEC, the elimination of margin trading and the Stock Exchange's own house cleaning have converted Wall Street into a haven for bargain hunters instead of marauders and tricksters.

However, admonishes Mr. Wheeler, be cautious. Before making an investment "think it over, talk it over, sleep on it." Don't buy a stock because it is cheap or some well-meaning friend gives you a tip on it. These tips are often as phoney as tips on horses. Above all, avoid new or unseasoned stocks. Why invest in new ventures when there are so many well-seasoned stocks with long dividend records?

When we stop to consider that eighty-five percent of Americans become dependents after sixty-five years of age due to financial mistakes, we realize how important it is to follow the author's advice to go slow, to be prudent and patient, to buy only good stocks outright and hold them regardless of market fluctuations.

The book is rich with pungent epigrams and apt quotations. It offers no sure-fire rule to make money. Its value lies in pointing out the pitfalls, the traps to avoid. It tells you more about holding on to your money in the market than how to make money in it. As the author says: "It is easy to make money but hard to keep it."

PROTEST

I am a stranger in the city's weather,
I do not own the roads that scar my feet,
My folded wings are hard and harsh as leather,
My veins are pulseless to its stress and beat.

In the stained man-made canyons deep in thunder
Where sweating men to motor, dynamo
Dry up their juices I can find no wonder,
I am an alien to this mad tempo.

The masoned cells, the tiers of ugly cages
Where men create the things they may not own
For grudged stipends and bread and butter wages,
The plodder so close to the paving stone
He cannot see the sky, a spent machine,
God never made for men this dull routine.

—ALEX R. SCHMIDT

SYMPHONIC WHITE

ATOMIC POWER

It was fifty golden horses flying from Jove's crest;
Jason's mighty Argo sailing at her best;
Thirty million thunderbolts flashing out at speed,
Gurdling lightning tigers, challenging their greed;
Noisy, rolling, thunder beating witch-men's drums,
Swelling, snarling, snatching till all earth succumbs;
Yanking up in fire, throwing down in hell,
Causing ugly, hollow cries to slowly grow and swell;
Pulling all within its grasp to hurl upon the rocks,
Pulling all except our faith—immortal paradox!

—VIRGINIA SHEEHAN

NOCTURNE

The night is full of calm, strange voices
Great trees, fan-shaped
Grope out to reach the stars—
A pale light creeps
beyond the dimmed horizon
then suddenly the longing ache tugging at my heart is stilled
and for a moment I find rest.

—A. G. WARSHAWSKY.

Days Before Yesterday

BY BETTY HASKELL

Everybody is going around wailing that Carmel isn't what it used to be, that Carmel has changed, that it's ruined. Of course people always hark back with nostalgia to the good old days, but lately their complaints have taken on a new note of finality and conviction.

Of course Carmel has changed. You wouldn't be here if it hadn't. It has changed from a path through the woods and a dirt road down hill to the sea, to a town of some breadth, quite a few conveniences, and too many people.

That's the main trouble—too many people. Nice ones of course, and certainly all kinds, but there are just too many for the size of Carmel. So the town is spreading out, filling in its wooded lots and canyons with new houses, cutting streets through, opening up new tracts for building.

Certain trends of thinking have changed too. In the beginning the handful of people living here were striving to expand. They wanted to grow. New Year's resolutions back in 1915 were all for a bigger and better Carmel. The population doubled during the summer months and over the Christmas holidays, but even then, the place wasn't exactly crowded. Certainly you could find a place to live without any trouble.

By the early 1920s Carmelites were more satisfied with their numbers and began to turn their ambitions and resolves to civic improvements, such as finishing the war memorial, building the library, keeping the gutter drains on Ocean Avenue clear of debris, and putting up signs at all the intersections.

But by the middle 1930s we were worrying in earnest about our individuality. When Santa Cruzians, misunderstanding the word "Progress," tried to get us to commercialize the beach, straighten the streets, number the houses, install a jail and other such appalling atrocities, they were met with a unified howl of rage. We became—or were more firmly established as—"those crazy Carmelites."

Our reputation hasn't changed a bit.

Neither has Carmel when you come down to essentials. Those of us who count Carmel as home, cannot look at it objectively of course. To us, home is spelled Carmel, and Carmel is spelled out in its unchangeables. Such things as the contour of the hills from the highway, the slope of Point Lobos, the sound of the surf, the quality of moonlight, the beach after a storm, swept clean of sand and tourists, the mouth of the river during the salmon run; such things as the post office on Saturday mornings, the Jo Mora murals in the Carmel Dairy, the dogs, the first time you see the Christmas tree from the top of the hill, the way Ocean Avenue looks about six o'clock in the evening when everybody is closing up and going home, the volunteer firemen rushing out of the movie when the siren screams . . . these things are forever renewed and they are changeless.

If you are a comparatively newcomer to Carmel, you won't start saying the place is ruined for another two or three years, anyway. If you came here ten or twenty years ago, you will remember the way it used to be with sudden shock at the changes on the face of our town, the building, the new stores, the disappearance of old landmarks. If you are a real old-time Carmelite, like Ernie Schweninger or Bert Heron, you don't complain nearly so much for some reason. Maybe you expected Carmel to grow up, and though you look back and remember, you also look ahead and trust that Carmel in its essentials, will never really change, for at least as long as it matters to us.

These essentials are quite simple. They are a live and let live policy, and a determination to preserve the natural beauty of Carmel. If you think Carmel has changed, just try telling your neighbors how they ought to build their house, or start hacking up a few pine trees and see what happens!

Canis Minor Sears, Prize Winning Pomeranian, Succumbs

Mrs. Millicent Sears, who owned a guest house at Carmel Highlands for twenty years but moved to Stanford University to study poetry and music a year ago, came to town for the holidays with the sad report that her black Pomeranian, Canis Minor, who had accompanied her everywhere during his eleven years of existence, had died just before Christmas.

Canis Minor numbered five champions among his ancestors, including Champion Firefly, Champion Banner Lordship, Champion Santoi, Champion Lade Cute and Champion Blackburn Sable Mite.

Although Canis Minor was never a champion himself—Mrs. Sears said she didn't want to bother with the red tape—he was the first Pomeranian ever to get a high rating in the obedience tests and won innumerable blue ribbons.

Mrs. Sears had set aside a fund of $1,000 for the maintenance of Canis Minor in case she should die before him, but when he died before Christmas, she decided that the money was rightfully his, and so has been distributing it to various people who were kind to the dog or fond of him.

Mrs. Sears has received innumerable formal letters of condolence and a poem by Elizabeth Newport Hepburn, dedicated to Canis Minor Sears, CD.

The Frederick Searchs Return To Live In Haunted Valley House

in her chemise, walked down the stairs and into the kitchen and out the front door of the house. She never says anything, but the sound of her footsteps can be heard on the kitchen floor. Her face has been seen very plainly.

Several years ago, Opal Search, preparing to move down to the farm, asked Ben Blomquist to tear out the stairway in the adobe part because she wanted to remodel the whole thing and turn it into a living room. The old timbers, shakes and beams were rotten and eaten with termites, and she wanted to add another room on with big windows facing the grass covered slopes across the road from the house. It wasn't on account of the ghost that Mrs. Search moved the stairway, but simply a matter of structural necessity.

However, the ghost of the dead Indian girl hasn't appeared since the stairway has been gone, or if she has come back to her old haunt, nobody has been there to observe her.

Last year Ben Blomquist was rummaging around in some of the drawers upstairs and discovered some trinkets and beads belonging to the Indian girl.

"What kind of beads?"

"Oh, Indian beads," Ben said, tossing his shock of gray-streaked wheat-colored hair. "You know... But somebody stole them. Or maybe the pack-rats got them. Anyway, I can't find them any place. But they came from her room."

Neither Opal nor Frederick Search have seen the ghost, but reliable valley inhabitants described her appearance but didn't want their names quoted in the newspaper for fear of being teased by skeptics or bothered by curiosity seekers.

Opal Search doesn't seem worried. Busy with feeding the chickens, ducks, cocks, cats, heifers, steers, putting roofing paper on the kitchen floor, ripping out wallpaper and painting the walls and ceiling, pruning the pear trees which have stood there for at least 76 years and are still bearing, she hasn't time to concern herself with anxieties about the supernatural.

LIONS BACK BONDS

Tuesday evening, at their first dinner meeting since the holiday recess, Carmel Lions voted unanimously to support the school bonds to be voted January 28. Roy Hillyer was the speaker of the evening, discussing rehabilitation.

Fairy Story Candy Shop Opens Today

Under a tree in the forest window of the House of Hansel and Gretel on Ocean near Mission, sit little Hansel and Gretel to tell everybody that their house is open today, with candy to satisfy all the sweet tooths in Carmel.

Cynthia Dragoo and Virginia Le Mon have contrived as unique an interior as can be found in the village. It is the dream of Cynthia Dragoo, who also picked up her paint pots and brushes and did the verses which appear on the front of the counters and the clever little pictures. The idea of the witch's house decorated with candy was all hers, too. It is all charming with white ruffled curtains of organdy, walls of apricot and fixtures in pale green.

Kippy Stuart Highly Popular With Lit Class

Kippy Stuart's spontaneous story telling, her pithy wit and warm humor, completely captivated the Adult School class in modern literature when she addressed the group as guest speaker last Tuesday evening at Sunset School. Mrs. Stuart told briefly of her own career as a writer of children's books, outlining the "Perils of Success" as she experienced them, having won immediate acclaim with her book Piang, the Moro Jungle Boy, a series of tales which she wrote for her son and published in 1917. A long period of study and struggle followed this first spontaneous effort, and not until 1941 did the second Piang book, Piang the Moro Chieftain, appear, followed in 1943 by The Pledge of Piang.

The data for these books was gathered during Mrs. Stuart's stay in the Philippines, particularly in the Moro inhabited Mindinao region, when her father was stationed there. All of the incidents related are based upon her own experience, that of Piang, who is indeed a real person and still very much alive, and upon the fables of the Moro people. Scientific research supplies the natural details of the jungle background.

Mrs. Stuart's talk was followed by a rapid-fire question and answer period during which she described various Moro customs, from the lovely marriage ceremonies to the habit of slicing off the noses of unfaithful wives. Jungle fables, interesting details of the Moro economic, social and religious life, and accounts of tropical dangers, all told with Kippy Stuart's inimitable style, made the evening a really delightful experience.

The last half hour of the meeting was spent in a round table discussion of children's books.

The class in modern literature is conducted by Mrs. Glen Clairmonte and meets every Tuesday evening at 7:30 in room 11 at Sunset School.—Betty Haskell.

Thomas Dempsey

Thomas Gerald Dempsey, who had come to make his home in Carmel three weeks ago, died suddenly of a cerebral hemorrhage at the Peninsula Community Hospital Tuesday, January 7. He had been staying at the home of a friend, Mr. Enos Fouratt, at Twelfth and Casanova streets when he was stricken and rushed to the hospital Monday night.

He was 45 years old and had been suffering from a heart condition for some time.

A native of Oakland, he had been making his home in Albany, California, where he was with the Bank of America before moving to Carmel.

He leaves his wife, Emily Dempsey, of Carmel and Albany, his son, Thomas G. Dempsey Jr., of San Francisco, his sister, Mrs. C. T. Hofmeister of Oakland, and three brothers, Owen J. Dempsey of Piedmont, Paul J. Dempsey of San Leandro, and James J. Dempsey of Los Angeles.

Funeral services were held on Thursday, January 9, at the Little Chapel of the Flowers in Berkeley, followed by a requiem mass at St. Jerome's Church in El Cerrito, and interment at St. Joseph's cemetery. The recitation of the Rosary was on Wednesday, January 8.

T. A. Dorney was in charge of local arrangements.

"Proud Of School Board," Mrs. Rigdon; Jimmy Doud, Mrs. Elston, John Fitch, Express Approval Of School Bond Issue

By Bee Martin

The spirit of Santa Claus may extend beyond the Christmas season this year, and the children may get a gift that is truly enduring, judging by the reaction of a number of typical Carmel citizens to our question, "What do you think of the school bond issue of $450,000 to be voted on January 28?"

"I am proud of the school board for its initiative in making the survey," said Mrs. Jonathan Rigdon, past president of the P. T. A. "It shows we have an up-and-coming community. The amount we spend on education demonstrates the measure of the intelligence of our community. We should show our gratitude by getting out and working to put the bonds over."

Avid newspaper readers already know that these bonds will permit the purchase sites for two new primary schools, one to be built north of Ocean Avenue in 1947-48; and the other south of Ocean Avenue, in 1952. Sunset School would become an intermediate school, including children from the fifth through eighth grades. Additions will be made at the high school, such as a science unit, recreation center, arts and crafts unit, swimming pool, custodian's residence and storage building. Of these additions, the pool and recreation center will be shared with the public, as will the arts and crafts and music units.

Observing all the cars and taxis parked along Sunset's playgrounds, one can see at a glance how necessary are new primary schools, more centrally located. Taking children to school at 9:00 in the morning, collecting them at 11:30 for lunch, returning them at 12:30, and picking them up at 2:30 means a virtual day on wheels for the mothers.

The father of two little boys, Mr. Charles Leavitt, exclaimed enthusiastically, "I can tell you what my wife thinks about it. She thinks it's marvelous. And so do I."

Another popular Carmelite, Mr. James Doud, volunteered, "I've read all about it. You can put me down as 100 percent behind the bonds."

Mrs. Thomas Elston, whose husband is one of Carmel's new architects, added thoughtfully, "I think it will be fine, especially if the rest of the buildings are as well built as the high school. Mr. Ernest Kump is a good architect for the job, as he specializes in building schools. He'd be well versed on the needs and functions of a modern, up-to-date school plant. As for the new recreation unit and swimming pool," she continued, "Mr. Elston and I would love more opportunity to enjoy ourselves close to home."

Mr. John Fitch, retired businessman, yet still in active service as a taxpayer, remarked logically, "Yes, I'm all for it, if it will really help the children and if there really is a need for it."

It was a simple matter to show him the figures of Sunset's crowded classrooms and to show him how each classroom, now with its 32 pupils to each teacher maximum, left no room for anticipated newcomers. The high school, too, is pitifully unprepared to take care of the hoards of children soon to reach the top of the hill from Sunset.

"Of course, the financial end interests us taxpayers, too," he continued. "How much will it cost yearly?"

The planning survey shows that bond taxes at present are fifteen cents. Some bonds will be retired this year. Including this school bond issue, the taxes would be thirty cents, or, three cents cheaper than the average for the past nine years.

All that was needed was an explanation. "I'm all for it," he said.

Kindergarten five-year-olds, plodding up Ocean Avenue hill, may soon know a happy ending to their troubles. Little legs get dreadfully tired, sometimes, when mammas can't afford taxis.

A Little Lost Purse

Mrs. Elaine Gardiner came into The Pine Cone office recently with a little purse she had picked up on Seventh and Dolores. She was concerned because there was a key in it, and some small change. Mrs. Gardiner was leaving for the holidays so she asked us to put in an ad and said she would pay for it on her return. The purse was claimed and the ad paid for by the owner. Tuesday, Mrs. Gardiner, having returned from her holiday in the south, came in to pay for the ad and find out if the little purse had been claimed. A small incident that shows the good will and spirit of Carmel and why people love it.

Valenzuela Moves From Cachagua

Manuel Valenzuela, the creative genius whose window displays at the Discovery Shop last year were such artistic triumphs as to be considered by many people more exciting than the work of a lot of modern artists around here, moved down from the Cachagua last week to Monterey. He and his wife, Felicita, and the children have been living for several months at Captain Chittenin's ranch in the Cachagua not far from Prince's Camp and the Flavin ranch.

Manuel rented a house in Monterey several months ago with the idea of turning it into a Mexican restaurant, but has been waiting all this time for it to be vacated. This week he's going to work with hammer and nails and paint and everything else he can think of to turn the house into a highly decorative restaurant.

WHEN YOUR DOLLARS GO SHOPPING IN '47

Your big round dollars seldom purchase anything at below pre-war prices in these days of rising living costs. Almost everything in the line of daily necessities, has gone upward in price, 35 to 40 per cent and more. However, there is one monthly household item that has dropped down in price time after time since 1939 and has stayed down. That is the rate you pay for dependable gas and electric service to help you run your home with labor-saving and money-saving gas and electric appliances. It is ONE living cost item that can be listed in family budgets as "substantially below pre-war prices."

Hawks Perform

Apparently it was hawk day at Lobos Sunday. The Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society, on its monthly field trip, had the pleasure of seeing two white-tailed kites perching and in flight, and a marsh hawk capture and eat a small snake. Also putting in an appearance were the more common red-tailed hawk and the sparrow hawk. In all, 26 species of birds were observed. The party was under the leadership of Laidlaw Williams and accompanied by Park Superintendent R. A. Wilson.

Patricia Ryland Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. C. Jerry Ryland announce the engagement of their daughter, Patricia, to Harold Wilder of Compton, California. For the past two and a half years she has been employed in the drafting department in the office of her father, a local architect. Patricia has one sister, who is majoring in art at the University of Oregon. Mr. Wilder came to California from Quincy, Illinois. He is a graduate of the Quincy High School and later took his engineering degree at the University of Illinois. Chose Mission For Wedding

Among the weddings during the holidays, none was lovelier than the ceremony at the old Mission December 28 when Miss Sheila Conroy and Mr. Charles Robert Chase Jr. were united in marriage by Father Albert R. Bandini. The participants were all from Stockton who came to Carmel in order that Father Bandini, who has recently been transferred from Stockton, might perform the ceremony. The bride wore a dressmaker suit of R. A. F. blue with a chic hat fashioned of pink satin ribbon and pink roses, and carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses. Mr. Don Conroy, brother of the bride, gave her away, and her attendant was her sister-in-law, Mrs. Don Conroy, who wore a cinnamon brown suit with pink and brown accessories, and carried a French bouquet of pink carnations. Mr. Wayne Morrill of Stockton stood as best man.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Nona D. Conroy, and the groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Chase Sr. of Stockton.

Both are graduates of the College of the Pacific where their romance began, and both are continuing their studies, the bride attending Teachers College in San Francisco and the groom after being released from the Navy, where he served in the South Pacific, enrolled at the University of California at Berkeley.

After the ceremony a wedding luncheon was served at the La Ribera Hotel, where the guests gathered around a long table, lit by tall tapers with white carnations and bovardia extending the length of the table.

The guests were Mrs. Nona D. Conroy, Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Chase, Mr. and Mrs. Don Conroy and little Miss Donel Conroy, all of Stockton. Mr. and Mrs. James M. Donovan of Toronto, Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Norton Donovan of Tampa, Florida, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Morrill of Stockton, Mrs. Ada McGee of Carmel; Mrs. Henrietta Quevillon and Miss Marie O'Loughlin of Stockton.

More Honors For Col. Williams

Williams, Fourth Army surgeon, whose wife and son, Bill, lived in Carmel during the war while he was overseas, was presented with the Legion of Merit recently for exceptionally meritorious services as theater surgeon, China-Burma-India and India-Burma theaters of operations from June, 1942, to February, 1945. He also has the Army Commendation Ribbon, the Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Chinese Order of Yen Whei, First Grade, and the Chinese War Memorial Badge.

New England Loveliness

Helen Coolidge, formerly of Carmel and now making her home in Lyndon, Vermont, writes with a poet's appreciation to former friends, "You should come to New England some time and enjoy the quaint villages with their white church spires and the variety of its seasons. It would be hard to choose between the lovely spring, the gorgeous falls and the white winters. We could not bear to part with our place here. We are not Vermonters except by adoption but seem thoroughly rooted in the transplanting."

Those incomparable washable Scotch plaids in super-soft spun rayon with a wool-like texture are back in PUTNAM AND RAGGETT up on Ocean Avenue. This material has all the beauty of wool but never will it tempt a moth, and its colors are bright and unfading. For skirts, shirts and dresses it is ideal, being beautiful, washable and wrinkle resistant. It comes in the true plaids of the clans Forbes, MaCleod, Grey-Douglas, MacPherson, MacBeth, Buchanan, Barclay and others.

Fresh oysters, Jumbo shrimp and scallops will delight visitors to HILLYER'S COFFEE SHOP Sunday morning breakfast on San Carlos south of Ocean. HILLYER'S latest delicacy is yellow corn meal mush, sliced thin and fried to golden crispness and served with syrup or honey. It's delicious. The coffee shop will be open this Sunday for visiting golfers who may eat there from seven in the morning until two in the afternoon. While you breakfast at HILLYER'S you can have them put up a lunch to take to the golf tournament so you won't have to leave the excitement to eat.

Technically they're listed as fall clothes, but the dresses and suits on sale at the COUNTRY SHOP on Ocean at Lincoln are adaptable to any of Carmel's seasons. There is a group of Izod suits made of wonderful gray men's wear flannel which you'll wear all year round and fingertip length Izod coats with a handsome flared back for in between days. The group of jersey and gabardine dresses includes classic button styles in many colors and sizes.

A section of books on human relations from cradle to courtship has been assembled in the shop of THE CARMEL BOOKSELLERS on Mission north of Fifth. Don't let those troublesome problems of either children or adults worry you. A little advance study will save considerable grief. There's the Better Homes and Gardens Baby Book to guide the mother of children up to six years old. Chittenden's Living With Children proves it can be done peaceably, and Babies Are Human Beings by the Aldrichs is sane and sensible. De Schweinitz' Growing Up and Popenoe's Modern Marriage are among a comprehensive section of books on problems of maturity and marriage.

The new Magnavox Moderne in LIAL'S MUSIC STORE on Alvarado Street in Monterey leaves absolutely nothing to be desired for the beauty of the cabinet is matched only by the excellence of reproduction afforded by the Magnavox phonograph. The machine has two loud speakers to give an added dimension to sound and the phonograph rests in a drawer which may be closed when the machine is playing. The top is solid to please those of you who want a place to set things.

THE McDONALD REFRIGERATION COMPANY on Fremont Street in Monterey still boasts two Western Holly gas ranges with trash burner compartment and all modern conveniences. There's a Servel gas water heater in stock too with an all copper tank and fittings and a tremendous power of recovery achieved by some newly efficient arrangement in its interior which insures a constant flow of hot water. You can buy a fine washing machine too, minus a motor, in case you have the motor for it around the house. McDONALD'S still has several of the Breakfaster hot plates.

The CASA MUNRAS HOTEL in Monterey seems to be full of golfers, so when you drop in the hotel for a hot drink or a meal after the golf tournament you'll be among friends and allies. After brooking the chilly winds off Cypress Point you'll find the bar in CASA MUNRAS quite attractive, with its ancient putting irons couched above the bar mirror. If you don't want to dress sidle into the bar, but come back later for dinner and dancing. Danny Danziger will be playing for dinner from seven until nine and then there's dance music until midnight.

Phyllis Lytle Elopes

There was a bright big moon last Saturday night, good for driving and made to order for a pair of lovers who had left Carmel in way to Yuma, Arizona, to be married. Phyllis Lytle, attractive manager of Gump's Carmel store and Bud Harris of Missoula, Montana, just drove off and nobody knew a thing about it until a telephone call from Phoenix, Arizona, from one they supposed to be Miss Phyllis Lytle, announced to the astonished personnel of the shop that she wouldn't be in that morning because she and her husband, Mr. Harris, were on their way to Minneapolis to see her family.

They haven't yet recovered from the shock at the store. Mr. Harris blew in and out of the shop so fast that no one had time to ask him for his autograph, but the new groom swept them clean out of a manager before anyone had time to say "May I help you?" and the only name they had for him was Bud.

He was a Marine and Phyllis was a Marine and they met in one of those far off places where Marines go. Recently he has been going to college somewhere out in the wide open spaces of Montana and she came down from San Francisco to Carmel. Out of a clear sky the Marine landed right in the middle of Gump's and in no time flat the place was minus a manager, and Mr. and Mrs. Bud Harris were off honeymooning.

Stuarts Meet Son

Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Stuart left for San Francisco yesterday to meet their son, Arthur W. Stuart, who is arriving from Washington, D. C., on his way to the Philippines, as representative of the Treasury department, on a federal commission looking into fiscal and commercial conditions there. He is accompanied as far as San Francisco by his wife and small son, Paul, who will be guests of his sister, Dr. Margaret Stuart, for some weeks and who will be coming to Carmel from time to time during their stay in the city. Mrs. Arthur Stuart visited Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Stuart in the summer of '44, when her husband was overseas, and has many friends here.

New Ordinance Well Equipped With Safeguards

recommendation to the city council, it is not empowered to take final action.

The ordinance, which Attorney Hudson and the City Council have been working on for several months, appears to accomplish remarkably well what it is intended to do: delegate to the planning commission work the council feels needs more study and fact finding than they have time to give it, at the same time leaving the door always open so that dissatisfied citizens, as a final resort, can still dump their troubles in the lap of the council according to immemorial Carmel custom.

Other business of the meeting was the establishment of two truck loading zones on Dolores street, one in front of the Asia Inn and the Melo-Dee-Nursey display yard, the other in front of The Pine Cone and Vining's Market.

The council went on record as being in favor of the school bonds up for election January 28. It instructed the city clerk to write a letter endorsing the proposed Navy post graduate school at Del Monte. It set a zone of interest in response to a request of Robert Harnisch and Percy Parkes for reclassifying from R1 to C1 two lots on the west side of Monte Verde, adjoining the C-1 zone boundary. Next process is the circulating of a petition by Harnisch and Parkes among the property owners within the zone of interest.

They accepted the resignation of Police Desk Clerk H. H. Huntington, who is taking a civilian police job on Guam, and approved the appointment of a third engine driver for the fire department. Bud Butts will get the job. Contract for publishing city notices and ordinances was awarded Clifford H. Cook, Carmel Pine Cone at $1.00 per inch, a 30c per inch increase over the rate that has prevailed for the past four years. One bid was submitted for the building of the police quarters, $8,025.90 by M. J. Murphy. Council tabled bid for further consideration.

Earl Graft Buys McDonald's Dairy

Earl Graft, owner of the Carmel Dairy, is buying McDonald's Dairy from Gene Ricketts, and plans to combine the two milk routes. In due time, perhaps, all the milk bottles will sport Jo Mora's cows.

The Carmel Dairy, a time-honored institution in Carmel, has been in existence since 1903, and Earl Graft has been here for twenty years.

symphony, but there is such a thing as a serious scherzo, and these are it."

Jehanne-Bietry Salinger, former editor of Argus magazine and a director of the Lucien Labaudt gallery, wrote, "Richard Lofton belongs to a new school of painting. Watch his closely. He is a significant artist. The richness of pigmentation, his extensive knowledge of drawing and anatomy, his vitality, the deep quality of emotion and dignity that marks all his work would of their own single him out among good contemporary Americans. As it is, he has even more to offer. The contents of his work is meaningful without the frills of eloquence."

In addition to his paintings of South Carolina Negroes and Point Lobos studies, Dick Lofton has done some water color abstractions which will be included in the show.

This latter activity started when he snatched some turkey quills from his young daughter, DeeDee, and started painting with them. "Out of the mouths of babes and turkeys," quipped Nancy Lofton, his wife, who does Scouting the Shops for The Pine Cone.

appeared for the first session. Of the 65 there are 4 violas, 18 violins, 4 trumpets, 3 oboes, 3 flutes, 3 bassoons, 5 cellos with prospects of 8, 4 string basses—"We're going to have a well-balanced orchestra."

Minear says that the orchestra will be ready to give its first concert in March when he will take it on tour for performances in Pacific Grove and Salinas as well as in Carmel. A fourth of the orchestra personnel is made up of Salinas musicians.

They went into action the first evening with Chabrier's Espana Rhapsody; Tales from the Vienna Woods; and Johann Strauss' Oviture to Die Fledermaus.

Next session they are going to start work on Beethoven's Third Symphony.

"We now add ourselves to the 200 other communities in the United States who have symphony orchestras, the fourth in northern California," Minear said. He added that he wishes to extend his personal thanks and gratitude to all who have participated. "The orchestra would not have been possible without everybody's support."

LeFleur-Kalfus Wedding

Jacqueline LeFleur and Ray Kalfus surprised friends and relatives last week by "jumping the gun" and getting married fifteen days before their scheduled nuptials on Jan. 18. "Jackie" is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore LeFleur, who came here from Boston last year, and is employed in a Monterey law office. Ray, who attended high school here, is lately out of the Marines after a three year hitch, and is the son of Mrs. Carl A. Kludt, old-time resident of Carmel. Both bride and groom are popular among the young folk in Carmel.
